To Whom It May Concern,

I am thrilled to write this letter of recommendation for Joseph Chandler, an outstanding student who excelled in my OL-328 Leadership course at Southern New Hampshire University. Throughout the course, I had the privilege of observing Joseph's unwavering commitment to excellence and his innate leadership qualities.

From the outset, it was clear that Joseph embodies a spirit of excellence in both his academic and personal pursuits. His writing consistently displayed exceptional organization and clarity, reflecting his strong communication skills.

As the course progressed, Joseph's dedication continued to shine. His efforts consistently placed him at the forefront of the class, showcasing his commitment to achieving the highest standards. His ability to take pride in his work was particularly noteworthy, highlighting his character and commitment to producing quality results.

Joseph's commitment to excellence extends beyond the classroom. His dedication to his studies reflects his approach to life and work. His work stood out as a testament to his thoroughness and organizational skills, demonstrating his ability to tackle complex concepts effectively.

One particularly remarkable achievement was Joseph's attainment of a perfect score, a rare accomplishment that attests to his dedication and the quality of his work. His assignments consistently demonstrated depth, structure, and character, which are indicative of his leadership potential.

Joseph's leadership qualities are not confined to academic pursuits. His understanding that leadership starts at home and permeates all aspects of life underscores his holistic approach to growth and development. This is further exemplified by his ability to translate his personal values into his work.

I am truly proud of Joseph's accomplishments in my course. His dedication, passion for learning, and leadership potential position him as an exceptional candidate for further academic endeavors. Hello,
No problem. Then, can you do me a favor and draft a letter for me to edit?
It will be a lot easier for me if you can do that?

Dr. Cho,

Thank you for your reply. I understand your concerns and I apologize that my request was not more clear. Throughout the course I was honored by your praise of my work and my request is to simply reiterate some of that feedback into a more presentable document to add to my portfolio. Of course I'm not looking for anything more than what a "superb job" I did in your class.

For example: From my brief time as Joseph Chandler's instructor I found him to be a student of excellence. As one of my top students his assignments were thorough, well-organized, and superb...

Some of the assignment feedback that I received:

- I can definitely tell you are a person and a student of excellence! What an effort! Your writing is well-organized and superb! I can't say enough great things about your assignment. (assignment 1.2)
- I can tell you will be one of my top students, and I can't be more proud! Your efforts show through each of your assignment (assignment 2.1)
- I can always spot those that take pride in their work right away, and you are definitely one of them. (assignment 2.2)
- You are a student of excellence, and I have no doubt you are the same way at home and work. (assignment 3.1)
- I think your paper is the best one I've read so far, and I am about half way done. (assignment 3.2)
- Your paper stands out to me... Your paper is thorough, and well-organized. (assignment 5.2)
- I rarely give 100% to my students unless I really believe they deserve it. Not because there are no errors present but because their written assignments/projects were that good. So, you definitely deserve that (assignment 6.2)
- Your character comes through your written assignments (assignment 6.2)
- I have no doubt you are a great leader, because leadership starts at home (assignment 6.2)
- I am very proud of all you've accomplished, especially in this class! Students like you make my job easier. So, thank you for all the hard work. I have no doubt you will continue to excel :) (assignment 8.2)
- I just wanted to reach out and let you know that you had the highest score in class! (email)

Again, thank you for considering my request and I will understand if you are not comfortable completing this task.

Sincerely,
Joseph Chandler
